

PERSONAS

John Miller

John Miller is a 21-year-old University Student. He is about to start his 3rd year of his Computer Science Specialist degree in University of Toronto Mississauga. John still needs to finish 1.0 credits for his humanities breadth requirements and 3.0 computer science credits to graduate. He wishes to do his PEY (paid experience year) before his last year of university. He would like to only come back to study for a semester after his internship. John is struggling to pay his tuition as OSAP funding has been cut and he pays deregulated tuition. He is stressed about fulfilling his graduating requirements on time.

He lives in Brampton but busses to school in Mississauga everyday. Once he gets home, he logs onto discord and plays video games with his friends until night. He then studies and does homework and then falls asleep early so he can get up early and bus to school. John wants to be a game programmer and developer in the future.

John has many friends in his program and loves to spend time playing league with them. He often does poorly in his courses because of this.

John is disorganized and hates to do more work than needed. John has a love-hate relationship with computer science as his code is always lacking documentation and often confusing.

John wants to plan his year out so he can find out how many courses he should take for his third and fourth year so he can graduate on early. He would like to plan out his courses as easily and stress free as possible as he already receives enough stress from being in University of Toronto's Computer Science program.
